Minutes until Medical Knowledge	Time until first delivery of medical knowledge: _____ Time to be recorded in approximate number of minutes. A Bell curve will then be created based on the average time for all the episodes for each podcast. Top quintile will receive 5 points, bottom quintile will receive 1 point.
Length of Episode	I feel strongly that the length too long/short for material covered. Imagine personal life stuff, rant or chit-chat/dialogue that doesn't contribute to topic, <25% of time spent was high quality/valuable/entertaining/content-filled minutes	I feel the length was not appropriate (too short or too long) for content, ~50% of time spent was high quality/valuable/entertaining/content-filled minutes.	I am neutral about time use, >50% of time spent was high quality/valuable/entertaining/content-filled minutes.	I agree that time used well, overall length appropriate for content and theme, >75% of the time spent was high quality/valuable/entertaining/content-filled minutes	I agree that time was used well, overall length felt appropriate for content and theme, >90% of the time spent was high quality/valuable/entertaining/content-filled minutes
Sound Quality	inaudible (excessive background noises like paper, pens, breathing/mouth sounds; static; poor voice quality)	poor (frequent background noises like paper, pens, breathing/mouth sounds, but clear voices)	fair (consistent background noises like paper, pens, breathing/mouth sounds, but good voice quality)	good (rare background noises like pen click, paper shuffle, breathing/mouth sounds, good voice quality)	excellent (perfect, high quality sound, no background noise, minimal mouth sounds, good voice quality, professional sounding)
Credibility	not credible (no peer reviewed sources cited; no quality of evidence discussed; mostly a discussion among podcasters)	somewhat credible (peer reviewed sources cited inconsistently; mostly expert opinion presented)	moderately credible (peer reviewed sources cited consistently; expert opinions presented as such; quality of evidence not discussed; evidence for recommendations not discussed)	credible (peer reviewed sources cited consistently; expert opinions presented as such; quality of evidence usually discussed; evidence for recommendations typically discussed)	highly credible (peer reviewed sources cited consistently; expert opinions always presented as such; quality of evidence usually discussed; evidence for recommendations discussed when each pearl presented)
Entertainment	Boredom. Monotonic. Desire to turn it off prior to completion. May include only one voice in a single dictation.	Tolerable but with no entertainment value. May include single approach to delivery like single-setting conversation between 2 people.	Partially entertaining: a portion of time was entertaining but not the majority of the run time. Or, attempted entertainment that did not	Entertaining for the majority of the run time. May include either naturally engaging hosts or multiple forms of delivery/media.	Very enjoyable. I laughed, I cried, I learned. Dynamic structure that may include multiple forms of delivery/media, and/or land. Clear efforts to mix structure, tone, and media.		naturally talented speakers with engaging conversation.

Ease of Listening	Very difficult to follow/hosts jumped around and did not stay on topic	Difficult to follow/hosts had a hard time staying on topic	Could follow but strayed off topic multiple times	Easy to follow/only strayed off topic a couple times	Very easy to follow/hosts stayed on topic during the whole episode
Likelihood of Listening Regularly	Will never listen to this podcast again	Don't really care if I listen again	Will listen if the topic looks good	Will listen to most episodes	It's amazing! Will become a regular subscriber
Reliability	This will not help me whatsoever in my practice/life	Can pick a few things out that pertain to my practice/life	Some things pertain to my practice/life	Most things in the episode pertains to my practice/life	Everything in the episode pertains to my practice/life
